MSD: State Custody, Court Officials, and Agency-Directed Release Coordination

For a youth in state custody, the case manager acting as legal guardian may authorize access or release to foster parents, proctor parents, trackers, or other appropriate persons. Court-directed access or release involving probation officers, guardians ad litem, or similar court officials shall be honored when legally supported. School personnel shall coordinate such access with the principal or designee and document the release or access according to school procedures.
